The Farmalicious Mantra

It's how we measure ourselves. Every scoop, dip, tablespoon and dash. It's farmers owning the company. It's cows loving their farmers. It's rBST-free milk. It's the thickest sour cream, the cookingest butter and the best cottage cheese in the world. It's you cooking the most tantalizing, mesmerizing, freakishly great tasting food in your life. It's farm meets delicious. It's Farmalicious. It's Darigold.

Farmalicious Defined

Darigold is Farmalicious. And Farmalicious is an unexpected word that surprises, delights and challenges people to think differently about dairy. It's more than a hybrid of the words "farm" & "delicious." It's the attitude that dairy doesn't have to be dull. And it's a part of everything Darigold does as a brand.

Four Signature Styles

A decorative flourish in red, featuring two crossed forks in the center, with symmetrical scrollwork and leaf-like patterns extending outwards on either side.

The following families of design are the current directions of how we at Darigold represent ourselves. They aren't fixed formats, they're evolving design directions which allow slight advancements in each design solution. Each direction should allow and encourage the designer to use and interpret the elements as they see fit.

The Darigold logo is a part of everything we do and should be handled with respect. Giving it proper, safe distance from additional elements will help its legibility and impact. A good rule of thumb is leaving a space equal to  $1/4$  the height of the logo. Standard logos should be displayed like above, generally appearing in red, black, or white depending on its background.

For more dynamic layouts there are corner bleed versions of the standard Darigold logo. Essentially the standard Darigold logo has been rotated 8° and moved to a corner. The only exception is #6 which was rotated 8.2°.

Farmalicious has a custom logo lockup as well. In this case it requires a safe distance equal to the cap height of “FARM”.

Above is the rare case when it is acceptable to override the minimum space rules of the standard Darigold logo. The two logos are positioned so their baselines match.

The Farmalicious logo also has an official lockup with the forks as well.

This lockup can be in Darigold red or reversed in white as seen here.

..... Dynamic headlines can be built from multiple title fonts. In this case the fonts are chosen to best represent the tone and description of the word it is displaying. This should be the case in any event where a dynamic headline is created.

Decorative flourish with crossed forks and decorative swirls.

Portraits should be photographed in a similar manner to these taken by David Rose. Subjects should be lit as naturally as possible and feature Darigold products or prepared dishes that use Darigold ingredients.

If new photography is needed, please follow the style of Jane Armstrong's photography in existing Fresh Magazines. The overall feel should look fresh with clean light and well balanced products.

Photos are generally treated as full bleed elements with enough unobstructed clear background for type to have a safe area to live. Type should never overlap hero elements of photos. This will help the legibility and improve the overall design.

In addition to Word Templates, the Farmalicious aesthetic also has a standard PPT template set. It continues to follow the simple graphic rules set by the rest of the campaign shell by incorporating consistent color palettes, photography styles and font families. Above are examples of what the PPT slides look like. The end goal is to create a template general enough to present a variety of content while still capturing the personality of Farmalicious.
